

Think Outside the Box

The square transit—when the planets are at approximately 90-degrees apart—in astrology feels as edgy as the corner of a box; it's the type of energy where one is forced to think outside that boxed-in situation. Think about how you've been changed since last spring, and what are the ways you're being forced to think differently—and write that down. You can also review your birth chart and write about the squares in your natal + what do you think these represent for you. For more free astrology and journaling worksheets, check out thewritingorbit.com.

